THE HOTEL ACADIA, GRAND TRACADIE BEACH, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

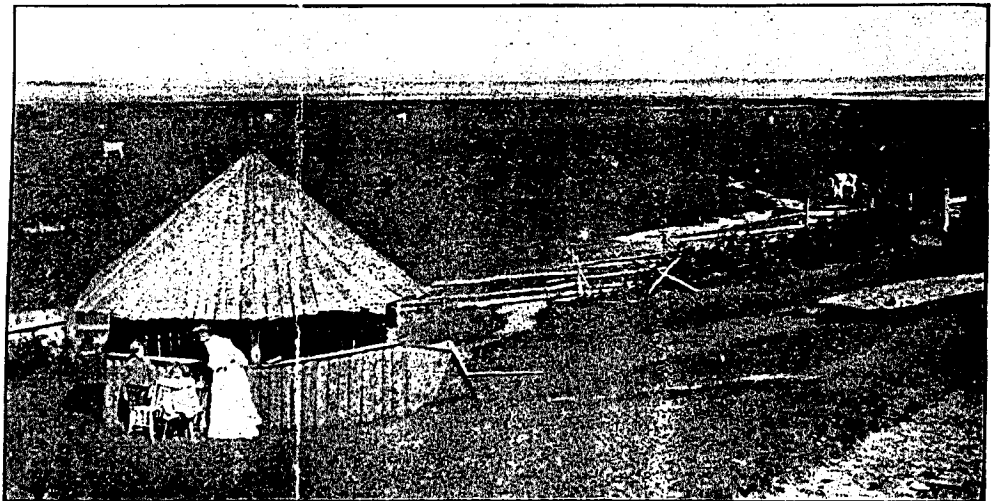

3.

THIS NOTED SUMMER RESORT is located on a peninsula, between the Gulf of Saint Lawrence and the beautiful haven of Tracadie, first settled by French traders and fishermen from Bretagne and Normandy in 1719, and again, 1771-1773, by families of the famous Highland Clan McDonald, under Capt. John McDonald, Laird of Glenaladale and Glenfinnan, a nephew of the celebrated Flora McDonald, to whose devotion Charles Stuart the last Pretender owed his escape in 1745.

The hotel, elevated above all danger from wave or tide, commands a wide expanse of sea, harbor and coast-line, north, east and south. Tall groves and dense copses on the north-west, west and south-west, shut off all view of the inland farms, and afford favorite resorts, for shade and rest. The house is large and in perfect repair; has wide hallways, lofty ceilings and large windows, most of which, like the ample verandahs, command fine views of the ocean, harbor, and surrounding country. The parlors are always comfortably heated in cool evenings and on stormy days, a matter of great importance to all who seek recuperation as well as pleasure. The splendid Acadia Spring, whose cold, clear, living waters have the softness and purity of the celebrated Poland Springs, rises at the base of the high terrace on which the hotel stands. It is tastefully sheltered by a rustic roof of unbarked fir, and a powerful wind-mill pump and tank convey its waters to all parts of the hotel. Many visitors claim to have received great benefit from the free use of the splendidly pure waters of this spring, especially in chronic rheumatic and kidney diseases.

Below the terrace, the ample and level grounds of the Acadia Golf Links, established in 1897, stretch away to the east and south, bordered by the yellow sands of the harbor shore-line. Here are the hotel bath-houses and the wharf and boat-house, where two large sail-boats and several smaller craft are in readiness at all times. Farther on, the "stages" or shore-fisherles of Tracadie, some half-score in all, present an array of rude landings and picturesquely bizarre living-rooms and fish-houses, clumsy tenders and staunch sea-beats, lining the left hand bank of the entrance channel almost to the very harbor's mouth. Beyond these and well up on the Gulf shore are bath-houses for surf-bathers. Across the main channel is seen the great promontory of huge sand-dunes, enclosing still ponds, sombre woods, tangled swamps and sheltered marshes, which defends the harbor against wave and tide, and beyond this the broad expanse of the great Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Tracadie has always been noted for its sea fisheries. Salmon, Halibut, Mackerel, Cod, Haddock, Ling, Herring, Alewives, Sea Perch, Plaunders, Smelts, Eels, Lobsters, etc., with Oysters, Clams, and Quahaugs abound in their season. The hotel yacht is always kept in condition, by an experienced fishing captain, who supplies the hotel daily with fresh fish, and takes out fishing and sailing parties.

Tracadie Harbor is an ideal resort for the sportsman and naturalist. Canada Geese and Brent resort thither by thousands in the spring and fall, and here the latter await until about June 8, the mustering armies of their mysteriously interrupted northward migration. After the middle of July, there is a long season of Plover and Duck shooting, which ends only with the coming of winter. In July, Peeps, Ringnecks, Curlews, and Yellow-legs; in August, Marlins, Upland and Redbreast Plover, Woodcock, Scribe, Black Duck, and Teal make their appearance, followed by many other species of Plover, and later by innumerable Geese, Brent, and other sea fowl. No license is required in this province; and with good dogs, excellent cover-shooting for Snipe, Woodcock, and Rabbits may be had. Many hundreds of "Marsh Birds" were killed last season within rifle-shot of the Acadia, and several shooting-boxes are maintained for the convenience of patrons. The great number of species which breed and harbor on Prince Edward Island offers a wide field to the student of ornithology. Many fine specimens and photographic studies of bird-life were secured here in 1903.

The Sea Trout of Prince Edward Island, immortalized by the late Frank Forester, are taken in tide water early in the season. Later, as Brook Trout, they abound in the neighboring rivers and streams. Especially fine fishing may be had at Campbell's Lake, Corran Ban Bridge, Thompson's and Black River Mills, Morell Forks, and other localities.

The red clay and sandstone cliffs; the yellowish-white of beach and sand-dunes; the blue waters, and the deep, vivid colors of the foliage, herbage and flowers of Prince Edward Island, give a strangely tropical effect to her Northern scenery; while the unusually clear atmosphere produces the most wonderful effects, rivalling, it is declared by travellers, even the splendid dawns, sunsets, and starry and moonlit nights of the Mediterranean. Magnificent displays of the Aurora Borealis or Northern Lights may be looked for in August and September.

The country people retain many of their ancestral traits, traditions, and customs, and are kindly and hospitable to an extent rarely met with elsewhere. Villages of French Acadian habitants, many of them descendants of some who escaped the fate of the unhappy settlers of Grand-Pre, can be visited in a day's excursion. A few families of Micmac Indians, once the strongest, fiercest and handsomest of the Abenakis allies of the French, generally visit Tracadie in summer, and their camps, canoes, and basket, porcupine quill, bead, birch bark, and wood work are well worthy of notice and patronage.

HOTEL AVENUE, UNDER THE SPRUCES.

The Acadia's cuisine is of acknowledged excellence. Absolutely fresh mackerel, codfish, haddock, halibut, lobsters, clams, and other sea and harbor fish, deliciously cooked and tastefully served, are the specialty of the menus of the Acadia, and universally appreciated. Salmon, trout, and game are liberally served during their season. Prince Edward Island beef, mutton, pork, and poultry have long been noted for their splendid quality and fine flavor. The resources of the justly admired vegetable market at Charlottetown are seconded by a large and productive garden, which also yields magnificent rows of the most delicately tinted sweet peas, variegated nasturtiums, and other table flowers. Cream, milk, butter, and cheese are furnished by the best dairies, and wild strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, and other native and imported fruits are not wanting.

A dance and concert room and good music await the pleasure of patrons every week-day evening. The grove is furnished with seats, swings, and hammocks, and the grounds are laid out and equipped for lawn tennis, tether ball, croquet, etc. Carriages and saddle-horses; boats for rowing or sailing; fishing-tackle, bait, bathing suits, and the like, are provided at reasonable prices.

The mail arrives at and leaves the hotel every week-day morning. Telephone connection with Charlottetown permits prompt telegraph communication with all parts of the world.

Tracadie Beach has acquired an enviable reputation as a health resort for those "run down" by overwork and nervous strain, and has undoubtedly restored to robust health and renewed mental vigor many whose physical and mental depression was a great anxiety to their friends. A case of hay fever has never been known to originate here, and those attacked previous to their arrival invariably obtain relief.

Curiously enough, the shallow waters of the Gulf afford warmer water and more comfortable bathing from July until late in September than can be enjoyed on the New England coast. Foggy days and mosquitoes are almost unknown.

The perfect comfort, wholesome and delicious food, pure air and water, and cheery social atmosphere of the Hotel Acadia ensure complete rest and relaxation, or any amount of healthful recreation and excitement, in every line of physical and mental enjoyment. It is nothing unusual for ladies and gentlemen, who arrive quite worn out, and thin in flesh, to gain from one to three pounds in weight every week of their stay.

The artist finds here many novel as well as beautiful scenes for brush, pencil, or camera; the author, a host of new types and suggestive experiences; and few leave without regret their pleasant summer life at Tracadie Beach, and the pleasant acquaintances and new friends first met at the Hotel Acadia.

CAMPBELL'S, HOME OF THE GAMEY TROUT.

Terms, Rates, and Routes of Travel.

The rates at the Hotel Acadia are very low, when the quality of the service (it is rated by Baejecker the highest in the Province) and its many attractions are considered. Transients pay $2.00 per day; regular boarders, $8.00 to $12.00 per week. Special rates are made for children under ten years old, servants, and large parties of tourists.

The Hotel Acadia is only fourteen miles from Charlottetown, P. E. I., by road, and four miles from Bedford Station, on the eastern branch of the P. E. I. Railway. A round trip ticket costs 45 cents. There are two trains daily, both of which are met by carriages from the Acadia.

The Plant Line steamers leave Boston at 12 M., on Tuesdays and Saturdays, from Union Wharf, for Charlottetown, stopping at Halifax, N. S., and Port Hawksbury in the Strait of Canseau. Charlottetown is reached in twenty-four hours, over the Boston & Maine Railroad via Portland, Bangor, St. John, Point du Chene and Summerside, P. E. I. Guests returning by this route, and leaving the Acadia at 8 A.M., arrive in Boston at 7 A.M., or at Montreal at 9 A.M. the next day. This trip may be varied by taking the steamers of the Eastern Steamship Company from Boston to St. John, N. B., via Portland and Eastport, or their new boat, the Calvin Austin, which leaves Boston Mondays and Thursdays, reaching St. John early next morning, to connect with the express train for Point du Chene, and steam and rail to Charlottetown, which is reached the same evening. The Dominion Steamship Line and Atlantic Railway and connections, land passengers in Charlottetown via Yarmouth, Digby, Annapolis, Wolfville, Windsor, Truro and Pictou, N. S.

From Canada, tourists can obtain through tickets to Charlottetown, over the Canadian Pacific and Intercolonial Railways via Point du Chene or Pictou, and also by the steamers of the Quebec Steamship Company from Montreal and Quebec.

The Niagara River Line, steamers Chlicora, Corona, and Chippewa, make six trips daily, Sundays excepted, from Buffalo and Niagara Falls to Toronto, connecting with the boats passing through the Thousand Islands and the Lachine Rapids, to Montreal and all points in Lower Canada, and also with the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railways.—R. W. Folger, General Manager, Toronto.

By these lines one can make the tour of the lower St. Lawrence and the Maritime Provinces to advantage, and can spend a week or two with pleasure at the Hotel Acadia and Acadia Spring.

Through tickets from Boston to Charlottetown cost from $10.00 to $14.00, with a liberal reduction on round trip and excursion tickets.
